19/EP Minutes of the Previous Meeting

The minutes of the meeting held on 29 November 2021 were confirmed by the Committee and signed by the Chairman.

20/EP Citizens Advice Surrey Heath

The Committee received a presentation from Kate Sawdy, CEO, in respect of the work of Citizens Advice Surrey Heath.

Citizens Advice Surrey Heath (CASH) gave advice across a whole range of problems for people in Surrey Heath, including benefits, debt, housing, employment, family issues and immigration. CASH saw the 'whole person', and more than ever, clients were visiting CASH with multiple problems. CASH's service was primarily delivered by highly trained volunteers and was quality assured by the national network to the highest standards. There was an emphasis for CASH to help their clients find solutions without escalation and that their service was always impartial, confidential and free.

CASH also collected data about their clients and their issues and used this information on a national but also a more local level in order to campaign for change where needed.

In January 2022, more than 270,000 people sought one-to-one advice from Citizens Advice across England and Wales, topping a previous high of 265,000 in November 2021. 24,000 required some type of crisis support such as food bank referrals and charitable payments - the highest on record for Citizens Advice. In addition the number of people supported with energy debts hit more than 8,000, the highest on record. The average energy debt of CASH clients with such cases now stood at £1,450, up from £1,330 in 2020.

On a local level, comparing the 21/22 financial year to 20/21, enquiries received by CASH relating to debt had increased by 56% and enquiries relating to utilities and communications bills had increased by 79%. However positively, enquiries regarding employment had fell by 22% on the previous year. Furthermore, CASH had experienced record numbers of enquiries in January including 257 enquiries in respect of the Household Support Fund.

Arising from Members' questions and comments the following points were noted:

- Part of CASH's plan for 2022-25 was to increase the diversity and knowledge of its team of staff and volunteers. However, it was noted that it took at least 6 months of training before a CASH volunteer made a meaningful contribution to the organisation; and this made it difficult to successfully recruit and retain younger volunteers. The Council had the opportunity to offer social media support to CASH in respect of the recruitment of volunteers through digital channels. Furthermore, whilst CASH services and volunteering opportunities were already promoted via various community magazines, there was potential to further promote volunteering opportunities with CASH in Heathscene.
- Outstanding work had been conducted in respect of promoting the Surrey Heath Hardship Fund. However, it was noted that in-need, eligible residents were still unaware of the fund, as demonstrated by recent referrals at the Old Dean Free Food Stall. It was noted that unfortunately applications for the fund closed, before the rise in the energy price cap due to take place on 1 April 2022.
- In respect of the recruitment of volunteers there were potential opportunities to engage with groups such as the University of the Third Age and the Rotary Club. CASH had recently presented to a group of NHS staff, in respect of the service and long-term volunteering opportunities.

The Committee thanked Kate and her team for their continued work supporting those in need within Surrey Heath.

21/EP Accent Housing

The Committee received a presentation from Julie Wittich, Executive Director of Assets and Sustainability, and Holly Sheppard, Contracts Manager, in respect of Accent Housing's future plans, recent charges, and an update as to the ongoing maintenance issues in relation to its Surrey Heath properties.

Julie Wittich had joined the organisation in the role of Executive Director of Assets & Sustainability, which reflected Accent's new focus on asset management, and building capacity and undertaking a review of its maintenance service.

Accent had secured a significant grant from the Social Housing Decarbonisation Funds and would be investing in a pilot scheme for the use of part of the funds, including 66 properties within Surrey Heath, to a total of £40,000. Such initiatives were key to Accent's focus to make its assets more energy efficient and to tackle fuel poverty.

Following Storm Eunice, Accent had prioritised resulting repairs which mostly consisted of roofing, fencing and treework issues. Whilst recruitment and retention issues still continued in relation to the maintenance service, Accent was working with Axis Europe in order to ensure the recruitment of quality operatives and the use of additional sub-contractors in order to increase capacity. During 2021/22 (Year to date), 62.9% of repairs were completed within 15 days against a target of 95%. Furthermore, despite noting that some repairs, where prior specification work needed to be undertaken, could not be completed on the first visit, the targeted rates for first time fixes and the targeted customer satisfaction letter had also fallen below the target standard.

In total, so far this financial year, 838 planned works had been completed, which would soon include new radiators at Cranmore Court, which was due to be completed by the end of February. Customer satisfaction still continued to be lower than wished. This was partly attributable to challenges in respect of material supply which had been caused by the pandemic and Brexit.

Arising from the Committee's questions and comments the following points were noted:

- The current backlog of outstanding responsive repairs, which had failed to be dealt with outside the targeted 28 day routine period, currently stood at circa 500 within Surrey Heath. Accent regularly reviewed their 'WIP (Work in Progress)', of outstanding maintenance repairs, which required a fine balancing act between aiming to meet the 28 day routine period for newer jobs and also tackling the long-outstanding jobs.
- Accent had 100% nominations from the Council in respect of filling its homes; and Accent did not have its own allocations policy. However, there was an opportunity for Accent Housing to perhaps use tools such as its tenancy agreements and its procedures on anti-social behaviour to split apart disruptive combinations of tenants. In the case of new build estates, local lettings plans, which would be created in conjunction with the Council, could enable the creation of more socially sustainable communities and provided a mix between larger and smaller properties and between employed and unemployed tenants.
- There were multiple cases of urgent, severe repairs which hadn't been completed and had been outstanding for very long periods of more than 6 months. Furthermore, Councillors had heard horror stories from their residents in respect of inadequate repairs and terrible communication. It was felt that the cases reflected, not just the scale of the backlog, but the severity of the cases included.
- Accent Housing was terminating its maintenance contract with Axis Europe. Accent had received assurances that they wanted an amicable, demobilisation of the contract. The new contract with the future maintenance contractor would return to the traditional method of payment, where Accent would only pay for completed jobs.

- Accent and the Council had worked in exemplary partnership in respect of the Afghan Locally Employed Staff (LES) Relocation Scheme.

Accent agreed to arrange a single point of contact to be arranged for Surrey Heath Borough Councillors and Members thanked Julie and Holly for their time and presentation.

22/EP The Hope Hub Report

Mags Mercer, Chief Executive Officer, gave an update on the Hope Hub which was a charitable organisation which worked to prevent and end Homelessness within Surrey Heath.

The Hope Hub provided crisis and empowerment services for anyone who was or was at risk of becoming homeless, or whom was struggling with mental health, debt issues and unemployment. This included provision of emergency relief and items and one to one casework support, employment advice; and money and debt advice.

Recently, the Hope Hub had reintroduced its living well programme, where it was envisaged that in the future one programme per weekday would be featured. Sessions included a 5 week affordable cookery course, shopping on a budget and understanding labelling. It was recognised that many clients had enjoyed sharing experiences and socialising during such sessions which had been missed during the height of the pandemic.

The Hope Hub's digital inclusion project called IT Connect allowed clients to borrow a tablet for up to three months. The programme also worked to train and upskill clients; and this ran alongside a programme provided by a training and employment coach. In addition a number of clients had completed a certificated volunteering programme. Overall a total of 183 individuals had attended the Hope Hub's training courses; some of whom left with accredited qualifications.

Moving forward the charity was developing a service user forum, which would be made up of individuals which reflected the Hope Hub's client base. In addition, as many of the volunteers which had lent their time during the pandemic had moved on to other opportunities, the Hope Hub was seeking to engage new volunteers and had benefited from the expertise of the Frimley Park Hospital Volunteer Coordinator.

On looking forward and on evaluation of the recent changes to the demand for the Hope Hub's services, statistics showed that Hope Hub Clients now suffered with more complex needs and were often multiple disadvantaged. This resulted in the Hope Hub's average client engaging with the service on 31 occasions. In relation to this the Hope Hub aimed to provide a wider range of services, which included social enterprise initiatives, and had longer term ambitions of a 'Hope House', and skills centre.

The Hope Hub's Emergency Accommodation Service, provided in conjunction with the Council, was due to officially open on 22 March 2022. However, the service was already providing 3 rooms with a further 3 rooms slowed down by defect and building material supply issues. The accommodation's residents would live at the house for 6 weeks in which they would work intensely with the day service offering. At the end of the period the client would move into private rental or social housing.

Arising from Members' questions and comments the following points were noted:

- Where a homeless person was entrenched in rough sleeping, the Hope Hub would provide them with the necessities, but would not support them in order to enable them to continue sleeping rough on a permanent basis. In such instances, the day service would help them obtain identification in order to give them access to temporary accommodation and would often add them to the 2 year SAN programme, where the Hope Hub would report on the individual's progress to Surrey Heath and Surrey County Councils.
- All of the Hope Hub's Emergency Accommodation's residents signed a declaration stating that they would not engage in substance misuse whilst at the house.
- There was potential for The Hope Hub to work in conjunction with the Man with a Pan initiative.
- Following the completion of a risk assessment, coordination between the Council's Housing team and The Hope Hub could allow for a rough-sleeping individual to be placed within the emergency accommodation within the same day.
- There was a lack of emergency accommodation within easy reach of Camberley. This problem was exacerbated by the lack of a clear emergency accommodation referral process for out of office hours. It was felt that there was an opportunity to hold easily-assessed emergency rough sleeping kits, which would include a sleeping bag, clothing and essential toiletries, at St Michaels, St Martins and St Marys Churches.

The Committee thanked Mags for her informative update and continued fantastic work in the borough.

23/EP Camberley Street Angels

The Committee received a verbal update from Reverend Mike Thomason and Richard Salt, Street Angels Coordinator, in respect of Camberley Street Angels.

Camberley Street Angels was a Churches Together initiative and a group of volunteers who believed that people deserved care and love at their time of need.

The Street Angels provided emergency welfare support in Camberley Town Centre, when the nighttime economy was most active. The Street Angels currently provided support on two Fridays a month, including the monthly payday, and worked alongside the Police and doorstaff. The initiative was reemerging, post lockdown, and currently had 13 volunteers.

Following Members' comments it was clarified that in order to volunteer as part of Camberley Street Angels individuals did not need to be a member of the church, but instead just needed to share the church's ethos and values. Members also felt that there was an opportunity to promote the Street Angels in Heathscene in order to help with the recruitment of volunteers and it was noted that various Members had volunteered with Camberley Street Angels and had found the experience enlightening.

Members thanked Mike and Richard for the update.

24/EP Committee Work Programme

The Committee considered its Committee Work Programme for the 22/23 municipal year. It was noted that the work programme had a level of flexibility in order to encourage attendance from the Surrey Police and Crime Commissioner at the same meeting as the Borough Commander. Furthermore the Committee expressed its wish for Accent representatives to attend future meetings in-person, rather than virtually. In addition, it was asked by the Committee to have an update as to the status of the Surrey Heath Arts Council.

Foreword from the Police and Crime Commissioner

When I was elected as Police and Crime Commissioner in May, I pledged to keep residents' views at the heart of my plans for the future. One of the most important roles I have is to represent the views of those who live and work in Surrey in how our county is policed and I want to make sure the public's priorities are my priorities. So I am delighted to present my Police and Crime Plan which set out the key areas I believe Surrey Police need to focus on during my term of office.

There are a number of issues our communities have told me are important to them such as tackling anti-social behaviour in their local area, improving police visibility, making the county's roads safer and preventing violence against women and girls. This Plan has been designed to reflect those priorities and will provide the basis on which I hold the Chief Constable to account for delivering a policing service our communities expect and deserve.

A great deal of work has gone into developing this Plan and I wanted to ensure it reflects as wide a range of views as possible on those issues that are important to people in Surrey. With the help of my Deputy Commissioner, Ellie Vesey-Thompson, we undertook the widest consultation process ever carried out by the Commissioner's office. This included a county-wide survey of Surrey residents and direct conversations with key groups such as MPs, councillors, victim and survivor groups, young people, professionals in crime reduction and safety, rural crime groups and those representing Surrey's diverse communities.

What we heard was lots of praise for the Surrey Police officers, staff and volunteers across the county, but also a desire to see a more visible police presence in our communities, tackling those crimes and issues that are important to people where they live.

Our police teams of course cannot be everywhere and much of the crime they have to deal with, such as domestic abuse and fraud, happens out of sight – in people's homes and on-line. We know that a visible police presence can provide reassurance to residents, but we need to make sure that this is directed to the right places and has a purpose.

I am in no doubt that these are challenging times. In the last 18 months policing has been under great pressure as it adapted to delivering services and maintaining resources during the Covid-19 pandemic. More recently there has been intense public scrutiny following the shocking death of Sarah Everard at the hands of a serving police officer. This has sparked far-reaching debate about the continued epidemic of violence that women and girls experience and the police service has much work to do to combat this problem, tackle the root causes of offending and restore confidence in policing.

I have heard from you how important it is that those who offend, who target our vulnerable people or threaten our communities need to be brought to justice. I have also heard how important it is to you to feel connected to Surrey Police and to be able to get help when you need it.

Balancing these demands is the challenge our police leaders face. We are receiving more funding for police officers from the Government, but it will take time for these officers to be recruited and trained. Having spent a considerable amount of time out and about with our policing teams since I was elected, I have seen first-hand the hard work and dedication they put in every day to keep our county safe. They deserve the continued thanks of us all for their ongoing commitment.

Surrey is a fantastic place to live and work and I am committed to using this Plan and working with the Chief Constable to ensure we have a policing service in which this county can continue to be proud.

Lisa Townsend

Lisa Townsend,
Police and Crime Commissioner for Surrey

Foreword from the Chief Constable

I am pleased to endorse this Police and Crime Plan, which is based on extensive consultation with our communities in Surrey. Throughout my public service I have always believed that policing should work tirelessly to keep people safe and feeling safe too. Both are important to our community cohesion, quality of life, wellbeing and economic prosperity.

When I was appointed as Chief Constable, I made three sets of commitments. Firstly, to guide how we respond to, and care for, the thousands of people that contact us each day for help. Central to this is our work to prevent crime, protect our communities and pursue offenders. The priorities set out in this Plan will help us in our strong ambition for Surrey to remain one of the very safest counties for residents, businesses and visitors.

I believe that what Surrey Police feels like to work for, directly affects the quality of service provided by our officers, staff and volunteers. This is why my second set of commitments was to our people, who have coped with the most extraordinary demands during the pandemic. We want nothing less than the highest standards of professional behaviour, as we take great pride in our service to you. Surrey Police is a kind, welcoming and inclusive organisation, that seeks to learn from the experiences and perspectives of others. We also work hard to respect and reflect the differences in the communities we serve. Like you, we have been shocked, angered and saddened by recent events that have undermined confidence in policing. Without your confidence our work to keep our county safe and feeling safe, is so much more difficult. This Plan helps us to focus on the issues that matter most to you.

Finally, I have committed that Surrey Police will be an organisation that puts prevention at the heart of what we do, listening carefully to your concerns so that we spot problems early, acting quickly and avoiding quick fixes that don't last. We commit to using the full potential of our diverse workforce, investment in technology and strong partnerships to work closely with you in delivering this Plan.

Chief Constable for Surrey Police

Police and Crime Plan priorities

The priorities in this Police and Crime Plan reflect those areas that residents and the key groups we spoke to felt were important to them. I also considered current crime trends and professional analysis from the police on where resources are needed to keep Surrey safe.

The priorities set out in this Plan are:

Preventing violence against women and girls in Surrey

Protecting people from harm in Surrey

Working with Surrey communities so that they feel safe

Strengthening relationships between Surrey Police and Surrey residents

Ensuring safer Surrey roads

More information on how each of these priorities will be achieved is given in the next pages.

Preventing violence against women and girls in Surrey

Women and girls should be able to live free from fear of violence, but sadly that fear is often grown from a young age. Whether it is experiencing harassment in the street through to other forms of gender-based abuse, being the victim of such behaviour has become ‘normalised’ as part of daily life. I want women and girls in Surrey to be safe and feel safe in public and private spaces. Combatting the scourge of Violence Against Women and Girls needs widespread societal change to address misogyny and gender inequality. Everyone has a role to play in addressing unacceptable behaviour in others. Violence Against Women and Girls encompasses a wide range of gender-based crimes including domestic abuse, sexual offences, stalking, harassment, human trafficking and ‘Honour’ Based Violence. We know these crimes disproportionately affect women and girls, with women four times more likely to experience a sexual assault than men.

To support women and girls who are victims of violence:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Fully implement and deliver against the Surrey Police Violence Against Women and Girls Strategy 2021-2024, including high quality support to victims and improved understanding of violence and abuse 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Commission specialist services that are accessible to women from diverse backgrounds and are informed by the voices of victims
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Provide reassurance and build public confidence in the police to investigate violence against women and girls and empower all officers and staff to flag inappropriate behaviour amongst colleagues 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Identify lessons and actions needed from domestic death reviews, safeguarding adult and safeguarding children reviews and work with partners to ensure families feel seen and heard
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Intervene with stalking and domestic abuse perpetrators at early stages to address behaviour and prevent abuse by using protection orders 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Play an active role in all key strategic partnership boards and groups focussed on tackling violence against women and girls
Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ■ Commission services informed by the risks around abuse that cause women to become involved in the criminal justice system

I make no apologies for setting a priority on reducing violence against women and girls in my Police and Crime Plan, but this does not mean that we don't recognise that men and boys can be victims of violence and sexual offences too. All victims of crime should have access to proper support. A successful approach to tackling violence against women and girls and keeping everyone safe is to recognise that whilst some offences can be committed by females, the vast majority of abuse and violence is perpetrated by men and my office will continue to work closely with Surrey Police and partners to deliver a co-ordinated community response.

To bring offenders to justice:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none">Invest in investigation capability and skills to solve more cases, arrest offenders and to break the cycle of reoffending for perpetrators	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Work with partners in the criminal justice system to ensure that the current backlog of court cases is cleared, improve timeliness and support victims so that cases can be taken to court where appropriate
Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none">Work with partners to promote happy and healthy relationships amongst children and young people that help them to recognise what's acceptable and what's not

Protecting people from harm in Surrey

As Police and Crime Commissioner, I recognise that vulnerability comes in many forms and my office will be unwavering in its commitment to ensure all of our communities are protected from harm and victimisation, both online and offline. This may be abuse against children, older people or minority groups, hate crime or harm to those who are vulnerable to exploitation.

To support victims vulnerable to harm:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Meet the requirements of the new Victims' Code 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure the voices of victims are both heard and acted upon, that they are central to my office's approach to commissioning and shared formally with the wider criminal justice system
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure that victims of all crimes receive the highest possible quality of care through the Surrey Police Victim and Witness Care Unit 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Seek out additional sources of funding to support delivery of local victim services
Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Use feedback from victims, through surveys and feedback sessions, to understand their experience and improve the police response and wider criminal justice process
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Build confidence in those that have previously suffered in silence to seek support
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work in partnership to protect people from harm by ensuring representation on key statutory boards in Surrey, maintaining constructive relationships and sharing good practice and learning

Children and young people can be particularly vulnerable to being targeted by criminals and organised gangs. I have appointed a Deputy Police and Crime Commissioner who will take a lead on working with police and partners to support children and young people.

To support young victims vulnerable to harm:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Be guided by the National Child Centred Policing Strategy to improve the quality of policing for children and young people by acknowledging their differences, recognising their vulnerabilities and meeting their needs 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work alongside children and young people at every opportunity and help with education on the dangers of drugs, child sexual exploitation, online grooming and County Lines criminality
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work with education partners to make schools safe spaces and help inform children and young people around exploitation, drugs and County Lines criminality 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Advocate for more funding to tackle the threat and risks that face our children and young people. I will call for more immediate resources to increase our preventative work and safeguard children and young people
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Explore new approaches to tackling offenders who exploit our children 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure Surrey has appropriate services in place to help young victims cope and recover from their experiences
Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work with partners to explore the impact of technology, supporting and developing preventative initiatives for communities, parents and the children and young people themselves

To reduce violence and knife crime:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Carry out operations aimed at reducing knife crime and educating communities about the dangers of carrying knives 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Commission support services to intervene and reduce violence and knife crime such as the Child Criminal Exploitation Targeted Support service and the Early Help Project
Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work with and support the serious youth violence partnership. Poverty, school exclusions and having multiple disadvantages are some of the driving factors and we are committed to working with the partnership to find solutions to these big issues

To support people with mental health needs:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...

Modern Slavery is the exploitation of people who have been forced, deceived or coerced into a life of labour and servitude. It is a crime hidden often from society where victims are subjected to abuse, inhumane and degrading treatment. Examples of enslavement include a person who is forced to work, is controlled by an employer, is bought or sold as ‘property’ or has restrictions placed on their movements. It happens across the UK, including in Surrey, in situations such as car washes, nail bars, servitude and sex workers. Some, but not all, victims will also have been trafficked into the country.

Working with Surrey communities so that they feel safe

I am committed to ensuring all residents feel safe in their local communities. Through my consultation it was clear many people feel their communities are impacted by crime in their local area such as anti-social behaviour, drug related harm or environmental crime.

To reduce anti-social behaviour:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...

Rural communities in Surrey tell me how important it is to tackle issues that affect their areas. My Deputy Commissioner is taking a lead on rural crime issues and working with rural communities in Surrey and I am pleased that we now have dedicated rural crime teams in place. We will work with the Chief Constable to ensure the Force combat offences such as theft of machinery and wildlife crime.

Strengthening relationships between Surrey Police and Surrey residents

My aim is for all residents to feel that their police force is visible in tackling the issues that matter to them and that they can engage with Surrey Police when they have a crime or anti-social behaviour problem or need other police support. We must recognise that types of crime have changed considerably over the last decade or so, with a great deal of crime taking place in people’s homes and online. A visible presence on our streets provides reassurance to communities and that must continue. But we must balance this with the need for a police presence in places that aren’t always seen by the public, such as tackling online crimes and working to bring offenders to justice.

To give communities a visible police presence:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure police are aware of local issues and work with communities and partners to solve local problems 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Do our part to help promote the existing local policing teams so that Surrey communities know who they are and how to contact them
Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Balance the desire from communities to see a physical policing presence, with the increasing demands from crimes committed in homes and online
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Direct increased resources funded by the Government uplift programme into the tackling the crime types which most affect Surrey’s communities

To ensure residents can contact Surrey Police:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure there are a range of ways to contact Surrey Police that suit individual needs 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Promote the different ways in which residents can contact police, including telephone and online reporting

Together we will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure that when people have a complaint, they know who to contact, have their complaint investigated proportionately and receive a timely response

To ensure that there is feedback to residents on policing:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Improve feedback to local communities on crime trends, crime prevention advice and on success stories in reducing crime and catching offenders 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> With Surrey Police, use online methods such as Facebook to broaden engagement

I want to make sure that all of Surrey’s diverse communities feel safe, whether those are geographical communities or communities with protected characteristics (age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation).

To ensure that all communities in Surrey feel safe:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ensure that the Surrey Police Equality and Diversity strategy is implemented, including an aim to better reflect Surrey’s communities in the workforce 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Meet with a wide and diverse range of community groups that represent residents across Surrey

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work with communities, including the travelling community, to find solutions to unauthorised encampments, including working with partners to develop a transit site in Surrey

Engagement between Surrey residents and police can be strengthened through community volunteering. My office runs the Independent Custody Visiting Scheme in which members of the community go into police custody to check on the welfare of detainees. There are also volunteering opportunities in Surrey Police, such as Special Constables and Police Support Volunteers.

To support volunteering:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Promote and recruit to police volunteering opportunities 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Continue to operate an effective Independent Custody Visiting Scheme, supporting the volunteers and working with the Chief Constable on any issues identified

Ensuring safer Surrey roads

Surrey is home to some of the busiest stretches of motorway in the UK with significant numbers of vehicles using the county's road network every day. Our roads carry over 60% more than the national average amount of traffic. High profile cycle events in recent years, coupled with the beauty of the countryside, have made the Surrey Hills a destination point for cyclists and walkers as well as off-road vehicles, motorcycles and horse riders. Our roads, footpaths and bridleways are vibrant and open Surrey up to economic prosperity as well as leisure opportunities. However, concerns raised by communities highlight that many people misuse our roads in Surrey and cause distress to those living and working here.

To reduce serious road collisions:

Surrey Police will...	My office will...
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Support Surrey Police's Road's Policing Unit and the development of the Fatal Five Team. This team is focused on changing driver behaviour via a multi-agency preventative approach to tackle the fatal five causes of accidents on our roads: speeding, drink and drug driving, using a mobile phone, not wearing a seatbelt and careless driving, including enforcement 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Work with Surrey County Council, Surrey Fire and Rescue Service, the Highways Agency and others to create a partnership plan that reflects the needs of all our road users and shifts the focus to harm reduction

About Surrey and Surrey Police

Surrey is an area of varied geography, with a mix of busy towns and rural villages and a population of 1.2m residents.

Surrey Police allocate their officer and staff resources at a number of different levels. Its neighbourhood teams operate at a borough and district level, working locally with communities. These connect communities into more specialist policing services, such as response policing and investigative teams, which often work at a divisional level. Surrey-wide teams such as major crime investigation, firearms, roads policing and police dogs, work across the county and in many cases, in collaborated teams with Sussex Police.

Surrey Police has a workforce establishment of 2,105 warranted police officers and 1,978 police staff. Many of our police staff are in operational roles such as specialist investigators, Police Community Support Officers, crime analysts, forensics and contact centre staff taking 999 and 101 calls. With funding from the Government’s police uplift programme, Surrey Police is currently increasing its number of police officers and is working on improving representation of the workforce to reflect the diversity of Surrey’s communities.

An average day for Surrey Police:

Roles and responsibilities

The Police Reform and Social Responsibility Act (2011) established the role of the Police & Crime Commissioner to be a visible and accountable bridge between the Police and the public. The Chief Constable retains responsibility for delivering operational policing, whilst the Commissioner holds him to account for doing so. The Commissioner is held to account by the public and the Police and Crime Panel scrutinises the decisions of the Commissioner.

The Police and Crime Commissioner:

- Sets the strategic direction for policing in Surrey through the publication of the Police and Crime Plan
- Sets the budget and precept for policing in Surrey
- Holds the Chief Constable to account for delivery of the Police and Crime Plan and for efficient and effective policing
- Appoints and, if necessary, dismisses the Chief Constable
- Commissions services to help victims cope and recover, services to divert people away from crime and to prevent crime and to rehabilitate perpetrators
- Works with partners to reduce crime and improve community safety in Surrey

The Chief Constable:

- Delivers an efficient and effective policing service which meets the needs of Surrey residents
- Manages the resources and expenditure of the police force
- Is operationally independent of the Police and Crime Commissioner

The Police and Crime Panel:

- Scrutinises the key decisions of the Police and Crime Commissioner
- Reviews and makes recommendations on the Police and Crime Plan
- Reviews and makes recommendations on the proposed policing precept (council tax)
- Holds confirmation hearings for the appointment of the Chief Constable and key staff supporting the Commissioner
- Deals with complaints against the Commissioner

Ensuring Surrey Police have the right resources

As Police and Crime Commissioner, I receive all funding relating to policing in Surrey, via government grants and through the local council tax precept. We are facing a challenging financial environment ahead with the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic and the prospect of higher inflation and energy costs on the horizon. It is my role to set a revenue and capital budget for Surrey Police and determine the level of council tax raised to fund policing. For 2021/22, a gross revenue budget of £261.70m has been set for both my office and services and Surrey Police. Only 46% of this is funded by Central Government as Surrey has one of the lowest levels of grant funding per head in the country. The remaining 54% is funded by local residents through their council tax, which currently stands at £285.57 a year for a Band D property.

Staffing costs represent over 86% of the total budget with premises, equipment and transport making up a good part of the remainder. For 2021/22 my office had a total gross budget of almost £4.2m of which £3.1m is used to commission services to support victims and witnesses and promote community safety. My staff have also been particularly successful in securing additional funds during the year for initiatives such as Safer Streets and will continue to pursue these opportunities as they arise. Of the £1.1m remaining, £150k is required for audit services, leaving £950k to fund staffing, my own costs and the costs of running my office.

I am currently working with the Chief Constable to consider funding for next year and future years of this Plan and will be consulting with residents later in the year. I am also robustly scrutinising Surrey Police's plans for making savings and ensuring they operate efficiently. I will also campaign nationally for the Force to get its fair share of government grants and for a review of the current funding formula.

Surrey Police should have the people, estates, technology and skills it requires to police the county in the most effective and efficient way possible. Our residents are in the unenviable position of paying the highest proportion of local policing costs in the country. I therefore want to use this money wisely and efficiently and ensure we give them the very best value from their local police service. We will do this by having the right staff in place, securing fair funding for Surrey Police, planning for future demands and ensuring we operate as efficiently as possible.

Staffing

I will support the Chief Constable to make sure that we can:

- Attract the very best people into policing, with the right skills and from a diverse range of backgrounds that represent the communities we police
- Ensure our officers and staff have the skills, training and experience they need in order to flourish and provide and the right equipment to do their jobs effectively, efficiently and professionally
- Ensure that our increased officer resources are used to the best effect – aligned to policing demand and to those areas of priority that are identified in this Plan

Resources for Surrey

I will aim to get fair funding for Surrey Police by:

- Ensuring Surrey's voice is heard at the highest levels in government. I will seek to work with Ministers to address the inequalities in the funding formula that results in Surrey receiving amongst the lowest level of government funding per head in the country
- Continuing to pursue grants to enable investment in crime prevention and support for victims which are vital to making residents feel safer

Planning for the future

I will work with the Chief Constable to address future policing needs by:

- Delivering new estate facilities that are fit for the future, reduce our carbon footprint and meet the Force's needs but also are deliverable and affordable
- Ensuring that Surrey Police exploits the best of technology to enable it to improve its services, be a modern police service and to deliver efficiencies
- Meeting the commitment to being carbon neutral by effective planning, managing the police fleet and working with our suppliers

Police efficiency

I will work with the Chief Constable to improve efficiency within Surrey Police by:

- Making better use of technology to ensure that more money can be allocated to the operational policing that residents want
- Building on the existing arrangements already in place within Surrey Police where collaboration with other forces can deliver a clear operational or financial benefit

Efficiency in the Criminal Justice System

I will work with the Chief Constable to improve efficiency in the criminal justice system by:

- Ensuring that the evidence submitted to the courts by Surrey Police is both timely and of high quality
- Working with the criminal justice system to address the backlogs and delays that were intensified by the Covid-19 pandemic, bringing additional stress and trauma to those who are all too often at their most vulnerable
- Working with partners to influence an efficient and effective justice system that works for victims and does more to tackle the root causes of offending

Grant giving and commissioning

As Police and Crime Commissioner, in addition to core police funding, I receive funding to commission services which support victims of crime to help them cope and recover as well as funding to reduce reoffending and divert and support those at risk of offending or being exploited.

One of the key services I fund is the Surrey Police Victim and Witness Care Unit (VWCU). I am proud of the collaboration between my office and the Force to establish this dedicated team, which provides a service to all victims of crime from the point of reporting, through the criminal justice process and beyond. The unit is also able to support victims of crime who self-refer for support. I will continue to oversee its development, ensuring that victims of all crimes receive the highest quality of care possible and that Surrey Police are compliant with the requirements of the Victims' Code.

I also set aside some of the policing budget to provide funding for projects which improve community safety in Surrey. I am reviewing this funding programme but have set out some key principles. I will:

- Commission a broad spectrum of specialist, good quality and easily accessible services, which prevent crime and protect people of all ages against harm
- Listen to people's diverse and specific needs, which underpin all the commissioning activity of my office
- Commission specialist support to help victims of crime cope and recover
- Invest in preventing future crimes and addressing community safety issues, such as anti-social behaviour
- Undertake specialist work with offenders, working with them to address the root causes of their behaviour
- Support projects within our communities and Surrey Police which help improve and promote engagement between the police and residents
- Commission services to protect our children and young people, working alongside them to give them the tools to keep safe and make informed choices about their life

These services are a vital part of a collective effort to make Surrey a safer and better place to live. I will be working with partners to join up our efforts and co-commission services where possible to make the best use of resources and provide value for money for the Surrey public.

Funding will be accessible to organisations of all sizes. I will value the way small and locally based charities and community organisations respond to people's needs in a way that really matters to them. It's vital we tackle inequalities we know the pandemic has exacerbated and research evidences these organisations' distinctiveness in who they support, how they carry out their work and the role they play in their communities.

At the time of publishing my Plan, my total commissioning budget from Government funding, successful grant bids and from my office budget is in excess of £4 million and I will ensure the highest level of transparency with regards to my office's commissioning expenditure, allowing residents to fully understand how their money is being spent and the difference it is making.

Full details of funding levels and how it's allocated can be found on my website: <https://funding.surrey-pcc.gov.uk/>

Measurement of progress against the Police and Crime Plan

To measure the success of this Plan and the safety of people in Surrey, I will work with the Chief Constable to develop a scorecard of policing data which will include:

- Measures of crime levels and police outcomes for areas such as violence, sexual offences, fraud, burglary and car crime
- Measures of anti-social behaviour
- Levels of satisfaction and public confidence
- Support provided to victims of crime
- Road traffic collision data
- Resources and efficiency data

I will report on these measures in public meetings and on my website and I will also report on the progress against the Plan to the Surrey Police and Crime Panel.

To further inform my oversight, I will look at the results of inspection reports from Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary and Fire & Rescue Services (HMICFRS). These provide a more professional assessment of the work of Surrey Police to put data and trends into context. I will also ask partners for their feedback on how the Plan is progressing as well as asking the public for their views through surveys and during my meetings with residents.

Arrangements for holding the Chief Constable to account

I have developed this Plan in consultation with the Chief Constable and he has signed up to its delivery. I have set up a governance and scrutiny structure which allows me to formally hold the Chief Constable to account for delivery and progress against the policing elements of this Plan and the measures associated with it. I publish the agenda and minutes of my scrutiny meetings and they are webcast for the public to view every quarter. These can be found at www.surrey-pcc.gov.uk.

Working with partners

Working in partnership is integral to cutting crime and making our communities safer as well as improving the wellbeing of residents. At the heart of this Plan is the aspiration to develop relationships with communities, businesses and our partners who share a vision to make Surrey safer by looking at the bigger picture and recognising that prevention and early intervention is crucial. I have spoken to a wide range of partners in developing this Plan and have aimed to ensure that it fits with the key partnership strategies already in place in Surrey.

Collaboration

Surrey Police has a strong history of collaboration with other police forces, most notably with Sussex Police. Several operational policing areas have collaborated teams, as well as much of our back-office services. This allows smaller, specialist units to come together to share resources and expertise, facilitates joint training and operating models, improves the policing of criminals operating across borders and helps drive out efficiencies and savings. Collaborated operational areas include firearms, the dogs unit, public order, roads policing, homicide and major crime, serious and organised crime, forensic investigations, surveillance, cyber-crime and economic crime.

In order to make savings and reduce management costs, most of the support services for the two forces are also collaborated, including people services, information technology, finance, estates and fleet. Surrey Police also collaborates regionally with Hampshire, Kent, Sussex and Thames Valley on reducing serious and organised crime and on counter-terrorism and sharing specialist police technology.

Equality and diversity

I will develop and maintain good links with all the diverse communities in Surrey, working with the Independent Advisory Group for Surrey Police, meeting a range of community groups and consulting widely on my plans. I support and will oversee the Surrey Police Equality, Diversity and Human Rights Strategy and I am committed to improving workforce diversity in Surrey Police.

I also aim to make sure those who do go through the criminal justice system are dealt with fairly and effectively. I will work with partners to look at equality of service and to identify those elements that could be improved.

Strategic Policing Requirement and national priorities

Police forces in England and Wales need to tackle a wide range of threats to keep the public safe. There are some that go beyond county boundaries and require police forces to provide a joint national response.

A Strategic Policing Requirement (SPR) has been produced by the Home Office in consultation with the National Police Chiefs' Council. It describes the main national threats for England and Wales and requires each Police and Crime Commissioner and Chief Constable to provide enough resources from their local areas to collectively meet the national threats of terrorism; civil emergencies, serious and organised crime, public disorder, large-scale cyber incidents and child sexual abuse.

Commissioners and Chief Constables need to collaborate with others to ensure there is sufficient capacity to deal with national threats. I will work with the Chief Constable to make sure Surrey balances its requirement to meet national issues with protecting Surrey locally.

I will also take into account the Policing Vision 2025, set out by the National Police Chiefs' Council and the Association of Police and Crime Commissioners and the National Policing Measures set recently by the Government.

Consultation, reporting and review

I have consulted widely on the priorities set out within this Plan. You can view the more detailed results of these exercises on my website, www.surrey-pcc.gov.uk. I will report progress against this Police and Crime Plan publicly to the Police and Crime Panel and I will issue an Annual Report to inform the public, partners and stakeholders what has been happening in the previous 12 months.

Background and Supporting Information

2. Bisley Village Hall was built in 1874 and was originally the chapel to the Farm School and Shaftesbury School which later amalgamated to become Bisley Boys School. This closed in 1959.
In 1955 a committee representing all the village organisations at that time was formed to raise funds to build a new village hall. The fund raising too place over a number of years and in 1961 the funds were used to purchase the chapel and pay for a conversion.
Bisley Village Hall was opened with a charitable status in 1962. In 1982, the jubilee hall was added.

The Hall is a registered charity and provides a host location for many local groups who deliver a wide range of facilities for this popular hall.
